Legion Zone Rally Held at Irma

A very successful Zone Rally was held in Irma, Alta., October 24, 1951 by Zone No. 2, North-eastern Alberta. The Irma branch was the host branch and there was representation from all towns from Chauvin to Viking.

The chairman for the evening was Cde. Targett of Irma. He very ably made everyone feel at home as well as efficiently conducting the meeting.

Speakers were M. Nichol, Pres. of Edgerton branch; H. Kerr, Pres. of Wainwright branch; Cde. Targett, Irma branch; S. Hafso, Viking branch and A. Barker, Pres. of Kinsella branch.

Mr. R. A. Jones, Camrose, District Commander, spoke on the Poppy Campaign. He stated that there is an undercurrent of talk to the effect that Legion Branches were using profits of the Poppy sale for parties. This is absolutely untrue, as all branches keep those monies separately and are used for helping needy veterans. When we go out to sell poppies we are not flying under false colors. Any needy veteran, who had the foresight and love of country to the extent that he joined in defense of it, can verify to this. We are often prone to listen to those who have had no experience and who will not support the Poppy Campaign.

Cde. A. L. Saunders of DVA was the guest speaker. In short he stated that there are going to be increases in pensions. The DVA is doing all it can to make it easier for the veteran.

The meeting was followed by lunch, prepared by the Ladies Auxiliary at Irma. A social evening of visiting and dancing followed.

Wedding Bells

ORACHEVSKI — CHASE

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Thursday, November 1, at the St. Mary's Rectory in Viking when Michael, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orachevski of Jarrow, and Marjorie Irene, only daughter of Mrs. Chase and the late Orville Chase of Irma were united in marriage. Mildred Clay, cousin of the bride, acted as bridesmaid and Alfred, brother of the groom, as best man.

Rev. Fr. O'Neill performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a white velvet gown, fingertip length veil with coronet headpiece and carried a bouquet of red roses and white baby mums. Her only jewelry was a necklace and bracelet of rhinestones, gift of the groom. The bridesmaid's gown was of pale pink sparkle net with a flower bandeau in her hair. She carried a nosegay bouquet of pink roses and white baby mums.

After the ceremony a dinner was served at the Viking Hotel. The bride's table was centred by a three tiered wedding cake and a bouquet of mixed pink and white roses, mums and snapdragons.

The wedding party then drove to Wainwright to have their photos taken. They returned to Irma early in the evening, the bride changed to a travelling costume, a suit of anthracite gabardine with a top coat of teal blue, with fur trim and accessories of black and winter white.

The happy couple left by car for a short honeymoon. When they return they will be at home on the farm of Mrs. Helen Whidden at Jarrow.

Besides the immediate families those in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. George Clay of Paradise Valley, brother-in-law and sister of Mrs. Chase.

Former Residents of Strawberry Plains Celebrate Silver Wedding

On Sunday afternoon, Nov. 4, about fifty residents and former residents of Strawberry Plains, descended on the Hardisty home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hearn (Jim and Dolly), who for over twenty years had made their home in the Plains district, the occasion was their silver wedding anniversary.

After visiting for a few hours, a delicious lunch was served by the ladies, a three tiered wedding cake, beautifully decorated centred the table.

Alex Smallwood acting as M.C., spoke briefly of his family's long and pleasant association with Jim and Dolly, and introduced Mrs. Roy Reber who presented the couple with a silver tea strainer on behalf of the Irma Lodge of the L.O.B.A. of which Dolly is a member. After several other neighbors had contributed a few words, and expressed their best wishes for many more happy years together, little Carol Smallwood, on behalf of the group, presented the happy couple with a purse of money.

Mrs. Hearn replied briefly and fittingly.

Longer To Live

ONE OF THE ADVANTAGES of living in the present century would appear to be a growing tendency for men and women to enjoy a longer life span. Life insurance officials report from time to time on this subject and figures given by them show that the life expectancy of the average person has increased considerably since the beginning of this century. One firm reported that since 1912 the average length of life of industrial policy holders had increased by twenty-one years. The rate for industrial policy holders is reported to be slightly higher than for the general population, but no doubt figures for this group would represent the general trend.

People Now Live Longer

The decline in the death rate has been steady through the past thirty years and at the present time the average length of life of industrial policy holders is 68.3 years. This marks an increase of three years since 1916. Advances in medical science, higher standards of living, extended public health services and increased use of hospitals through sickness insurance plans were given as reasons for the declining death rate. In addition, many diseases which formerly took a large toll of lives each year have been brought under control, and the number of fatalities from pneumonia, influenza, tuberculosis, and common childhood diseases have decreased steadily in recent years.

Work Still To Be Done

It is encouraging to know that the scientific and social advances which have been made in the present century are resulting in a longer life expectancy for the people. Much time, effort, and money has been put into the fight against disease and great strides have been made, too, in extending health services, and in raising living standards throughout the country. The decline in the death rate is a tribute to these endeavours and no doubt it will continue to drop as time goes on. The results which have been achieved so far should be encouraging to those who work in various ways to prolong the life expectancy of the population.

Mackenzie Highway Vital Link To Canada's West Northland

Important Supply Route for Northern Industry and Outlet for Minerals

EDMONTON. — The Mackenzie highway, a vital link with Canada's northland, reached farther into the Northwest Territories than any other highway in Canada. Only the Alaska highway extends farther north, but it enters the Yukon without touching the Northwest Territories, and doesn't link with important industries of the north.

The all-weather Mackenzie highway stretches across muskeg, forests and farmlands for 384 miles from Grimsby near Peace River in Alberta to Hay River on Great Slave Lake in the Northwest Territories.

It is a vital, supply route for northern industry, carrying mining machinery, provisions and supplies to the north and shipments of fish, grain, fur and lumber to the rail port of Grimsby. It is also an important outlet for gold from Yellowknife and uranium from Fort Radium on Great Bear Lake.

Large trucks now deliver supplies to the doorsteps of traders who once waited weeks for them to be freighted along the Peace River or carried by winter tractor-train. The truck cargoes are moved on to Yellowknife and points on the Mackenzie river by boat from Hay River.

Homesteaders in Alberta's far north use the highway to carry harvest to elevators. Areas around

New Method Used In Alberta To Locate Oil

CALGARY.—A new method of locating oil and gas fields—longer is attracting attention in Alberta. The new method proposes to determine the actual presence of oil or gas through the operation of electrical currents. This contrasts to seismicograph operation, which can be best located structures favorable to oil accumulation.

The method has been developed by Dr. F. W. Lee, former chief of the geophysical survey section of the U.S. bureau of mines. He organized the bureau's division of geophysical exploration in 1928.

Dr. Lee's method works the same as electric logs in wells already drilled. But he claims to be able to tell by the electrical resistivity method in advance of any drilling whether any gas or oil is present.

With an imposing scientific record behind him, Dr. Lee is beginning to attract considerable attention in Alberta where the location of stratigraphic traps is still a hit or miss proposition.

Several independent oil companies are using the Lee survey and some report results that have proved predictions.

Should the new method establish all that is claimed it could revolutionize the oil search in Canada. It would reduce the cost of exploration and would be reflected in the price of gasoline.

Mix all ingredients as usual and lastly empty in the salted peanuts. Drop from spoon on greased baking sheet.

Add: 1/2 tsp. baking soda dissolved in 1 tablespoon boiling water, 1/2 tsp. vanilla. Add: 1 cup quick oats, 1 cup sifted flour, pinch salt. Oven temperature 350 degrees. Electric stove bake 10 minutes. Gas stove bake 8 to 10 minutes. You may add coconut to above mixture.

Cherry-Almond Delights: 1/2 lb. glucose cherries, 1/2 lb. almonds, 1 cup coconut. Put all through mincer. Bind with a slightly beaten egg. Pinch oil pieces and roll in small balls. Drop in a castor sugar bag, a few at a time, shake until sugar-coated. Put in pan and set in refrigerator until needed. These are not cooked.

Oatmeal-Coconut Cookies: 1/2 cup shortening, 1/2 cup granulated sugar, 1/2 cup brown sugar, Add 1 egg unbeaten. Add: 1/2 cup flour sifted with 1/2 tsp. baking powder, 1/2 tsp. baking soda, 1/2 tsp. salt. Add: 1 cup shredded coconut, 1 cup quick oats, few drops vanilla. Drop from spoon on greased cookie sheet.

Research Of Native Materials By Saskatchewan Scientists May Yield Needful Soluble Silicates

Used in Soap Making, Weighting of Silk, Fabric Dyes, Waterproofing Treatment for Books and Cement, and Many Other Ways

REGINA.—A new industry, using three native Saskatchewan materials—sand, lignite coal and sodium sulphate—may be in the making for this province. Scientists at the University of Saskatchewan are using these materials to produce soluble silicate, a material with a large number of commercial uses.

The research project, sponsored for two years by the Saskatchewan research council, is being carried out by Dr. S. D. Cavers, professor of chemical engineering.

Soluble silicates are used in soap manufacture, the impregnation of wood, weighting of silk, fabric dyes, as an adhesive in corrugated paper boxes, as a waterproofing treatment for bricks and cement and in many other ways.

The scientists are seeking to produce soluble silicates by fusing sodium sulphate, available in large quantities in Saskatchewan, with silica and carbon. A series of small-scale tests has been made using temperatures from 900 to 1,200 degrees centigrade. In these first experiments, a commercial silica called Ottawa sand and commercial carbon black were used with the Saskatchewan sodium sulphate.

Yields as high as 95 per cent soluble silicates have been obtained.

Now the researchers are seeking to use all Saskatchewan materials in the process. A pure sand, available in commercial quantities in the province, is being substituted for the Ottawa sand and lignite char, a material produced from Saskatchewan lignite coal, is replacing the commercial carbon black.

First tests indicate that these substitutions can be made without seriously affecting the yield of soluble silicates. However, further experiments are required before commercial production can become a reality.

These involve fusion on a larger scale to determine whether the production would be possible on a commercially feasible basis.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

The Boy With Fifty Bottles

Romance Starts in an Uncommon Way.

By KERRY WOOD

JIMMY placed ten bottles of Rose de Paree perfume in his pockets. The first time he'd gone out selling the stuff he'd carried fifty bottles, but he'd sold only five. At 15 cents a bottle, he was a long way from earning the $7.50 he had to send the perfume company to qualify for the fishing outfit they offered as premium.

He walked over to Poplar Street and knocked on a door.

"She's no home," said Nick the Vegetable Man, coming up. "Missus Rogers, she's up da town. She's see me and she's buy da cabbage, which I leave now."

"Okay, Nick," Jimmy nodded, pausing to pet Tony and Toby, the two hilly goats who pulled Nick's cart. "Whew! Your goats sure smell strong, Nick."

"Da smell, she's healthy," defended Nick, breaking into operatic song.

"Jimmy went over to Mrs. Dandel's. He told him that her husband had just bought her a large bottle of his favorite perfume as a birthday present. But she gave him a cookie."

Next house, the lady said no and closed the door. The fourth house produced another cookie, but no sale. Jimmy sat at the curb to eat his cookies.

"Hi! It was Buck Peters, the policeman. 'Why so solemn?'"

"It's on account of a fishin' outfit, Mister Peters. It's got a four-foot steel rod, a reel that clicks, a line that's fifty feet long, a red an' white float, an' five hooks."

"Sounds dandy," said the town's police force.

"Oh, I haven't got it yet," Jimmy pulled out a bottle of Rose de Paree.

"I gotta sell this perfume, first."

"So-o-o-o! Y'know, I once earned a baseball glove by selling a hundred bottles of perfume."

"It's hard work."

Sawchuck Shows His Magic

Netminder Terry Sawchuk of the Detroit Red Wings, sets the pace in the N.H.L. goal-keepers department with a terrific average of only one goal against him per game. The 22-year-old star also holds the shut-out spot with 3 in the 5 games he has played this season. In the photo above Sawchuk knocks away a labeled shot from the stick of Elmer Lack in a recent game. Fromont, Detroit rearward, seems amazed at the miracle Terry performed.

To Permit Beaver Trapping In Southern Saskatchewan This Fall

SASKATOON.—For the first time in more than 20 years fall trapping of beaver will be allowed this year in southern Saskatchewan.

The reason: Beaver have increased in the south to the point where in some areas they are causing property damage by blocking culverts, flooding roads and fields, cutting down trees and even gathering stock and swathed grain from adjacent fields, presumably to patch their houses and dams.

In announcing the fall beaver trapping, Game Commissioner E. L. Paynter stressed that it was not an "open season" and that permits would be granted to trap beaver only where the beaver were responsible for property damage.
